It has been said that Penguin Day began many years ago when someone noticed that on (or around) April 25th of each year Antarctic penguins began their migration. What is interesting about their particular migration is the goofy way they do it. Penguins don't seem to take their migration very seriously. In fact, you might say they are an embarrassment to the animal kingdom. They start out with grand intentions, all diving in at the same time, swimming like mad for the North. However, after about a hundred miles or so, they seem to get a bit sidetracked and sort of bob around with no apparent leader. After a time, they all turn around and head back home! (By suppertime, no less!) Do you think the penguins are actually beginning a migratory route, but manage to get sidetracked each year? Or are they merely exhibiting some other behavior that we don't recognize? Write an editorial presenting your opinion.

- Convince the reader to agree with your opinion.

Stretchy Sam has to stretch his mind to figure out how to spell words correctly. Each of these sentences has a sixth-grade word that is misspelled for you to find. Stretch your spelling brain just like Stretchy Sam can stretch his arms! Circle the wrong word in each sentence. Then use your research superpowers to find how to spell the word correctly, and write it in the blank. You can use a dictionary, either a big, real one if you have super strength...or a lighter, online one!

There were very few superheroes in the community since it was a small town

All the superheroes were compassionate and honorable, which is why people loved and respected them.

People thought that Aqua Gal's stories about the deep sea were almost unbelievable, and they especially questioned her stories of lost treasure.

Draw a picture of a lost treasure in the deep sea that you would like to discover:

Invisible Ingrid had to sometimes restle with the feeling that no one truly appreciated her superpower, but she knew many secrets because of her ability!

Stretchy Sam was in a seperate category from the other superheroes because his body changed when he used his ability.

Aqua Gal found a special sponge in an underwater cave that had cleaning superpowers, and she decided to use one to clean her room every day.

Draw a picture here of a super cleaning tool you could invent:

Have you ever heard the expression “THE PLOT THICKENS”? Well, for a plot to get more intense, guess what you have to have? Right! You need a plot! Write a paragraph describing the basic plot for your story.

Now think about how you would like your story to end. How does your main character resolve the problem or situation? How do the other characters help your main character?

Name: _____

Have you ever tried to write a story? It might seem like a big deal, but it's easier if you break it into parts. Stories can be MYSTERIES, fantasies, HISTORICAL, or sci fi. What kind of story do you like best? Why?

Sometimes a good story is based on a personal experience of the author. Can you think of something that has happened to you that might be a good story? Why would it be interesting to write about? If you like fiction better, write about an idea for a fiction story.

Draw a picture of a situation that might be a good story starter here:
