

Name: _____

Have you ever heard of the phrase “actions speak louder than words”? Actions are important in a story but so are the words the characters say. Dialogue is when two (or more) characters talk to each other. Let’s practice adding a dialogue to your story. This can be an exciting part of writing, but it also is a little challenging.

Do you think dialogue is important in a story? Why or why not?

Sometimes dialogue can show whether a character is an introvert, a quieter person, or an extrovert, a person who loves to be in center of everything! Is your character an introvert or an extrovert? How would the reader be able to tell?

Write several lines of dialogue between two characters in your story.

Name: _____

Draw an illustration of what your characters were talking about here: